I. Paragraph Structure. 10%

A. Topic Sentence

Passage 1

Captain Robert Barclay once went out at 5 in the morning to do a little grouse shooting. He walked at least 30 miles while he potted away, and then after dinner set out on a walk of 60 miles that he accomplished in 11 hours without a halt. Barclay did not sleep after this but went through the following day as if nothing had happened until the afternoon, when he walked 16 miles to a ball. He danced all night, and then in early morning walked home and spent a day partridge shooting. Finally he did get to bed—but only after a period of two nights and nearly three days had elapsed and he had walked 130 miles.

Passage 2

_____. Ordinary citizens, for example, could get to see Abraham Lincoln directly in the White House and make their requests to him in person. Now, all people must be cleared by the Secret Service before they can be in contact with the President. Even when the President visits people in their own homes, as Jimmy Carter sometimes did, the people and their homes are cleared by the Secret Service in advance. Citizens are even subjected to a search of their packages and clearance through metal detectors before they can be admitted to an event the President is attending. In fact, it requires a ticket and clearance through security devices to even enter the White House, and visitors can be sure the President will be nowhere in sight.
